

Several hours of the polling places in the congested districts during the day. The chief assistant, Ferdinand Pecore, was in charge of matters affecting the voting on the lower west side and Assistant District Attorney Broome, a Republican, looked after things in Harlem.

Although he has lived at No. 214 East 25th Street for twenty years, the vote of Ernest Berlet, forty, was challenged and he was arrested for false registration, when he appeared at the voting booth at No. 215 East 25th Street this morning. Policeman Bartak of the East 25th Street Station made the arrest, took Berlet before Magistrate Levine in the Yorkville Court, and presented an affidavit which quoted Mrs. Marie Bonny, janitress at No. 214, as saying nobody by the name of Berlet lived there.

Berlet stuck to his statement and the janitress was called. She then recognized him as a resident in the house with his mother and uncle, the latter leasing their apartment under his name. Berlet was discharged and his vote permitted to stand.

Manhattan was slower in getting started than the Bronx where the vote was unusually heavy in the first hours after the polls opened at 4 o'clock. Queens and Richmond began by taking only thirty or forty votes an hour, but going faster than Manhattan as noon approached.

One-third of the voters of Richmond had done their duty by 10 o'clock.

With 33 per cent. of the votes of Staten Island in the ballot boxes, former Borough President George Cronwell, Republican leader of Richmond County, conceded that Smith would carry the island by a "small plurality." Mr. Cronwell, however, estimated that Calder would beat Copeland for United States Senator by 1,000; that former Magistrate Handy would be elected to Congress by getting 3,000 more votes than Daniel J. Riordan, the present incumbent, and that John E. Howe would be elected Borough President by 3,000 over John J. Lynch. Mr. Cronwell asserted the Republicans would elect all the other candidates on the county and borough tickets.

Democratic Leader Thomas R. McGinley claimed a 10,000 plurality for Smith, 7,000 for Mr. Copeland and 1,000 for Riordan.

Patrick Corrigan, registered from No. 92 Bowery, a lodging house, was arrested when he tried to vote in the 17th Election District, 54 Assembly District, on the complaint of an inspector from the Attorney General's office, who produced a clerk of the lodging house to certify that Corrigan had not occupied a room there for three months.

Isabel Rubin and Samuel Hurwitz were arrested when they went to vote at the 8th Election District. Rubin was charged with falsely registering from No. 35 Jefferson Street, and Hurwitz for falsely stating he lived at No. 224 Madison Street. The charges were made by Gilbert inspectors.

Thousands of election officials, watchers, special agents and policemen assigned to polling places were on the job before daylight. It was a tryout of the new election law. In former years the polls were manned by two poll clerks, one ballot clerk and four canvassers. This year the polls are under control of a Board of Inspectors, consisting of two Democrats and two Republicans, with two clerks to assist in counting ballots.

MR. AND MRS. HARDING VOTE WITH 4 OF CABINET

Secretary Mellon Fails to Register and Loses Ballot.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—President Harding and four members of his official family, Secretaries Hughes, Weeks and Wallace, and Attorney General Daugherty, already have marked their ballots in to-day's election and mailed them to their home towns. Secretaries Denby, Fall and Postmaster General Work will vote in person at their legal places of residence, but the other three Cabinet officers, Secretary Mellon, who failed to register, and Hoover and Davis, will not vote.

tearing down the house at No. 32 and at No. 40.

When the work was begun most of the men living in the occupied houses in the row were away at the polls, but word was taken to them and they were soon back on the scene.

They found the neighborhood in an uproar. Women in the street threatening the workmen and a crowd gathering. The men who saw their homes about to be demolished lost no time in getting into battle. They sailed into the wreckers without an order.

When the battle was at its height, about forty being engaged on each side, some of the men were taken to the Flimmer Street Station that there was a riot.

Leut. Torney and a dozen men hastened to Heyward Street in patrol wagons and police automobiles and charged into the struggling crowd. By 10:30 the battle had been on for nearly half an hour, but within ten minutes the police had things quieted down and the crowd on its way.

Miss Mary Devaney, who lives in No. 30, said that the tenants of the buildings had been told they could remain until Dec. 1, their rent having been paid up to that time. She could not understand why the wrecking had been started so early.

NEIGHBORS CHEER AS AL SMITH VOTES WITH WIFE AND SON

"I Should Say I Am Confident," He Replies, After Casting Ballot.

MAYOR AT POLLS EARLY

He and Mrs. Hylan Stand in Line as Movie Men Crank.

The residents of Oliver Street gave Al Smith one-seventh of an Old Home Week to-day when he with Mrs. Smith and Al Jr. motored down there from the Hotel Biltmore headquarters to cast his ballot. The neighbors and the neighbors' children thronged about No. 26 Oliver Street, the former Governor's house, and crowded about the polling place in Public School No. 1, at Oliver and Henry Streets, with so much eagerness that the police on duty had a hard time making a lane for the Smith party.

Al Smith lives in the 15th Election District of the 1st Assembly District and when he and Mrs. Smith and young Al got there they were welcomed by Congressman Daniel J. Riordan, the Democratic Captain and himself a candidate. The Congressman was all for making it rather a formal tribute to the ex-Governor, but the neighbors and the neighbors' children urged about the party and jostled and pushed for a glimpse of Al and a handshake with any member of the party, so that it was just homey Oliver Street after all.

Former Gov. Smith stood aside to let his wife enter the polling place in the schoolhouse first, and to her ballot No. 235 was handed. Al Smith got No. 234 and young Al No. 233. It was the first time the action of the Smith house had voted and he was a target for the moving picture and camera men, who were all about the place. The former Governor's ballot was the twenty-seventh he has cast in his life.

When the gubernatorial candidate came out of the polling place he took off his glasses with a broad smile and submitted to more handshaking from the neighbors and their offspring. That was what they had come there to do, and they did it until Al Smith must have thought he was starting his campaign all over again.

As soon as his ballot was in the box, Al Smith took it as his last deed of the campaign and there was a whole heart in his comment: "Well, I'm glad it's all over now," as he folded his glasses and put them away. Some one in the crowd asked him, of course, whether he was confident of the result.

"I should say I am," he replied. "As John Dolan used to say, 'There isn't a question!'"

After that, but with the usual difficulty of getting away from the Oliver Street enthusiasts, Mr. Smith went to the Downtown Tammany Club, the district headquarters, at No. 59 Madison Street, where there were more neighbors and their children to be met and greeted.

Asked about his plans thereafter, he said he was on his way later to Brooklyn Hospital to visit Stuart Crawford, a reporter of the Herald, who had accompanied him during his campaign journeys through the State and been taken ill.

Then Al went to call on his mother at No. 9 Middagh Street, Brooklyn, just as he did two years ago. Thence he went back to the Biltmore to remain the rest of the day and evening and to receive the election returns.

Mrs. Catherine Smith, mother of Al Smith, went from the home of John J. Glynn, her son-in-law, with whom she lives at No. 9 Middagh Street, Brooklyn, to vote at Public School No. 1, at Hicks and Middagh Streets, at 11 o'clock.

Mrs. Smith, who is seventy years old, was accompanied by her son-in-law and Mrs. Frazer, a neighbor. Mrs. Glynn was kept at home by a serious cold. Mrs. Smith got ballot No. 235 and was in and out of a booth so quickly that she was little doubt that she voted "straight." She was not a bit afraid to say for whom she voted, either.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, with Mrs. Copeland, and the family cook, Miss Nora Moran, went to the basement polling place, around the corner from his home at No. 55 Centra Park West, to vote at 11 A. M. to-day. Posing for photographers inside the polling place, a crowd of voters were held up by the candidate. "I don't want you to be annoyed," he apologized, "you might vote the wrong way."

The water laughingly assured him they would vote "right."

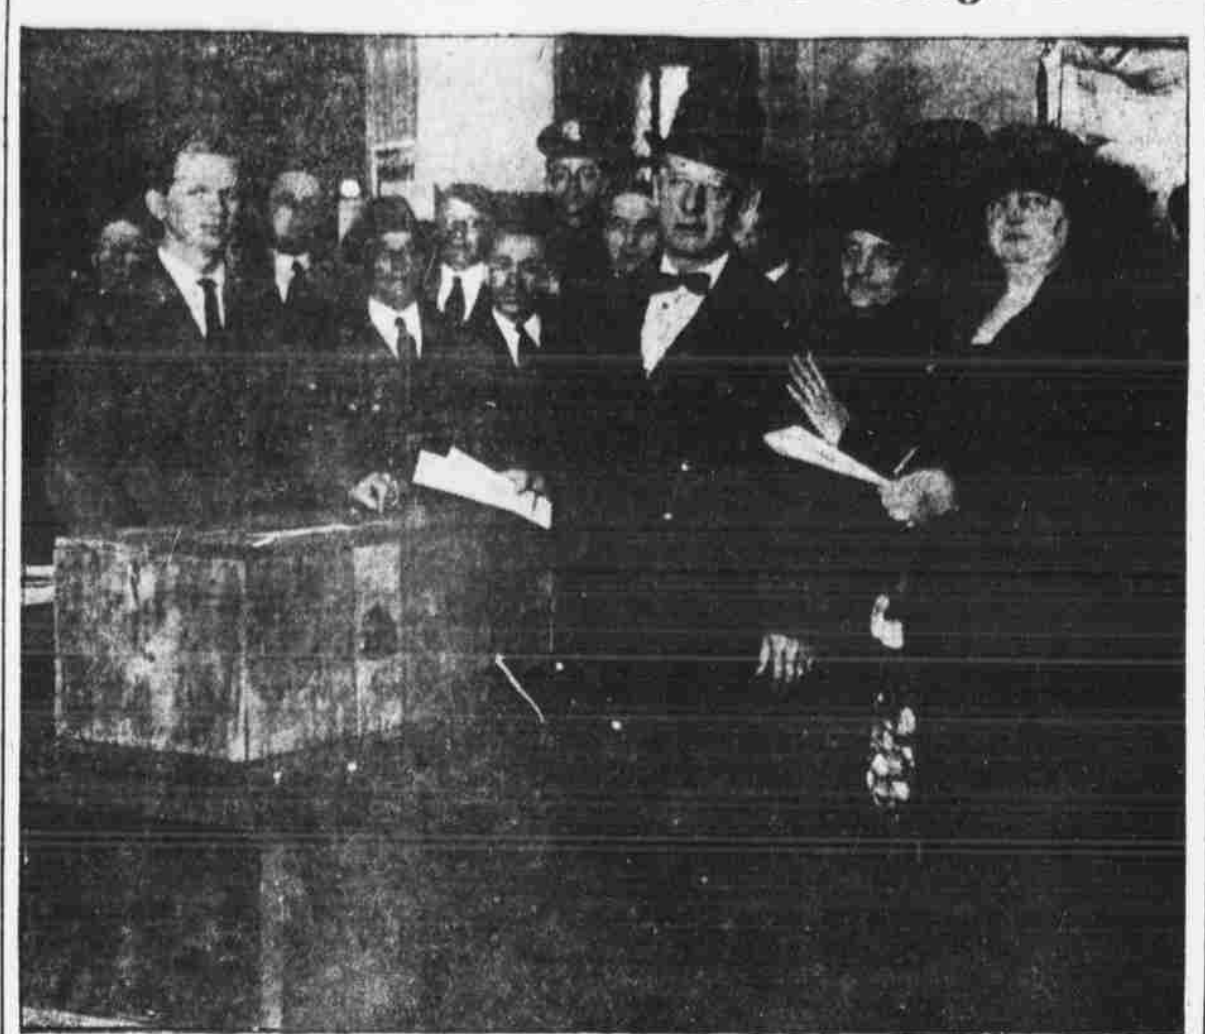

State Senator Nathan Strauss, candidate for re-election, shook hands with Dr. Copeland, as he passed from the polling place. The doctor called after him. "I'm voting for you, Senator."

Clarence M. Depew took two minutes to vote a straight Republican ticket at Polling Station No. 69, in 55th Street, near Sixth Avenue.

"This is the fiftieth anniversary of the election in which I ran for Lieutenant Governor on the Greeley ticket," he said, adding, "but I was defeated."

Though other voters wanted to make way for him the aged ex-Senator insisted on taking his place in the line.

MAYOR AND MRS. HYLAN CAST EARLY VOTES IN BUSHWICK DISTRICT

Mayor and Mrs. Hylan to-day cast their votes in a stationery store at No. 3114 Greene Avenue, two blocks from their home at No. 925 Bushwick Avenue, in the 13th Election District of the 20th Assembly District, Brooklyn.

When they arrived in the Mayor's car at 9 o'clock, seven voters were ahead of them, and these urged Mr. and Mrs. Hylan to take their places at the head of the line. "I'm refused, and, after shaking hands all around, waited for their turn in the booths."

It was 9:05 when they voted. They were in the booths only a minute. Mrs. Hylan used Ballot No. 91, the Mayor Ballot No. 92.

Afterward they posed for movies and still pictures. To the newspaper men, the Mayor said:

"I sincerely hope the voice of the people will be so positive as to make the candidates elected to office to-day realize the people expect them to live up to their pre-election pledges, and that the Government of the State will be taken from the corporations and returned to the people."

John H. McCooey, Democratic leader in Brooklyn, beat all other voters using the booth in this tailor shop at No. 1204 Bergen Street, 11th Election District of the 17th Assembly District. Mr. McCooey reached the booth at 6 A. M. and cast ballot No. 1.

Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, who lives only a short distance from Mr. McCooey, at No. 857 St. Mark's Avenue, voted at the same booth, but not until 9 o'clock.

PENCIL IN BOOTH BROKEN AFTER CALDER GOT THROUGH VOTING

United States Senator William M. Calder, who lives at No. 251 First Street, Brooklyn, voted Ballot No. 146 in a paint shop at No. 147 Seventh Avenue at 9:45 o'clock. This is the polling place of the 20th Election District of the 12th Assembly District. He was in the booth three minutes and when he came out remarked:

"This will be a regular party vote." "Then he said to reporters:

"I will carry Kings County by a substantial majority. The Democratic landslide is greatly overestimated."

When the Senator entered the polling place those in line stepped aside to give him preference, but he refused to take it and awaited his turn. After his vote was passed in the place in the booth was taken by a woman. She was in there about two seconds when she stuck her head out through the curtain and announced:

"The point is broken off this pencil."

NEW YORK UP-STATE EARLY VOTING IS UNUSUALLY HEAVY

Large Percentage of Registered Voters Cast Ballots Shortly After Polls Open.

ALBANY, Nov. 7.—Considerably more than half of the city's registered vote was cast by noon. Police officials said that not only was the balloting the heaviest in their remembrance, but the election passed off with less disturbance than any in recent years.

BUFFALO, Nov. 7.—With the weather clear and warm, a heavy vote was polled in the first two hours. In some districts poll clerks reported 20 per cent. of the registered vote to cast by 8 A. M.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 7.—Clear weather to-day brought hundreds of voters to the polls here in the first three hours of balloting. Early reports from the county townships show the farmer vote will be unusually heavy in this section. There is an unprecedented amount of splitting of tickets.

JAMESTOWN, Nov. 7.—It is clear and bright, with country roads in good condition, and a large vote is looked for in Chautauque County. At 8 o'clock it was estimated that 20 per cent. of the vote in Jamestown had been cast. There is apparently a good deal of splitting of tickets. The women's vote will be large.

BINGHAMTON, Nov. 7.—Election Day opened here with an overcast sky and mild temperature. Brisk voting at the opening of the polls was succeeded by several hours' apathy, and the housewives began balloting, and party workers say that before the close of the polls practically the full registered vote will have been cast.

ITHACA, Nov. 7.—Indications of a heavy vote in the city districts here were apparent, but cloudy weather prevailed accompanied by a heavy fog and the effect of this was pronounced in the rural districts. During the first few hours the number of women in line awaiting their turn to go into the voting booths in Ithaca was noticeable.

SYRACUSE, Nov. 7.—Heavy voting marked the early morning hours, many women being among those to appear at the polling places before 10 o'clock. The weather was clear and cool.

SCHENECTADY, Nov. 7.—Voters turned out at an unprecedentedly early hour here to-day. One district reports that half of those registered voted three hours after the polls opened. Watchers say that much splitting is being done. The fact that many Republicans are casting a complimentary vote for George R. Lunn of this city, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor, is believed to account for this.

ROCKEFELLER JR. POSES TWICE, BUT NO REPEATER

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr. voted early in the afternoon at No. 49 West 55th Street, which is the 10th Election District of the 15th Assembly District. They came in a limousine. There were three ahead of them in the line and they had a brief wait. Mrs. Rockefeller was the first to vote, her ballot being No. 254. Mr. Rockefeller's ballot was No. 255.

After Mr. Rockefeller voted a newspaper photographer asked him to pose for a picture in the act of substituting a ballot. Mr. Rockefeller agreed to do so and a flashbulb was made. The photographer said that he was not sure that his picture was a good one and asked Mr. Rockefeller to pose again.

"I will probably not do not make pictures of me voting twice," said Mr. Rockefeller. "They might think I am a repeater. Then he posed for another picture."

Mr. Rockefeller said that he had hurried home from the polls. He had been in order to be here in time to vote.

TROUBLE BREWS AT JERSEY POLLS; ONE ARREST MADE

Situation Tense in Hudson and Essex, With U. S. Agents Ready.

With New Jersey police and 250 Federal agents, who were called in to guard the polls, threatening dire things to each other if the election laws are violated at polling places in Hudson and Essex Counties, the first arrest was made in Newark by a deputy sheriff on instructions from a Federal agent. The prisoner was Harry Linden, said to be a Democratic worker. He was taken into custody in the 4th Election District of the 4th Ward.

At all polling places the police and the Federal men are watching each other closely. County Prosecutor John O. Bigelow, Democrat, of Essex County, bitterly resented implications that illegal voting was taking place in his county. He warned that any Federal agent or any one else who attempts to intimidate voters will be jailed. He added that any idea that there was a big fraudulent registration in Essex was ridiculous.

On the other hand, United States Attorney Walter G. Winne, in Jersey City, was all prepared to jump into the situation if reports indicated that the situation demanded it. He established headquarters in the Jersey City Post Office and announced that he had 50 deputy marshals prepared to rush to any seat of trouble. "We have 250 regular deputies within thirty minutes of Hudson County," he said.

Meanwhile both Republicans and Democrats are claiming commanding majorities for their candidates. Former Gov. E. C. Stokes, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, predicted the re-election of United States Senator Frelinghuysen and the election of ex-Senator Runyon for Governor by at least 50,000; but, on the other hand, Democrats are claiming that the vote in Hudson County will go so overwhelmingly Democratic that it will carry the whole State ticket with it.

Registration in Hudson County is a record one and Mayor Hague declared that an 80,000 Edwards plurality will be rolled up there. Harry Heiser, Democratic State Committee Chairman, is forecasting the election of Edwards and Slizer by 60,000 and adds that he will not be surprised if it touches 75,000.

The trouble between Federal agents and police came to a head last night as the result of a letter issued to the pollsters by Judge Hyman Lazarus of the Court of Common Pleas of Jersey City. In his letter the judge quoted the election laws having to do with the presence at the polls of only duly authorized persons, and he ordered the police to arrest any person at the polls whose presence there did not comply with the law.

"There have been persistent rumors," he wrote, "that unauthorized persons are to be brought here from outside the State for the purpose of participating in the election."

When this letter was shown to David Allen, a Jersey City Federal agent, who is in charge of 250 of the Frelinghuysen deputies, he said that his men would not allow the Jersey City police to approach within 100 feet of the polling places. Local officials then replied that if Allen tried anything like this his men would find themselves in jail. The situation appeared full of possibilities as the polls opened.

An unusually heavy vote was recorded up to 9:30 o'clock this morning in Jersey City. Many women accompanied their male relatives and friends to the polls.

Thirteen women are candidates for the New Jersey Assembly and several of at least seven appeared asured. Last year three women held places of honor in the Assembly.

In Atlantic County Mrs. Joseph Godfrey is a candidate on the Democratic ticket for the Assembly. Her candidacy is not being viewed with much concern by the opposition.

Essex County has four women candidates for the Assembly, two each on the Republican and Democratic tickets. Mrs. Agnes Schermerhorn of East Orange, active in the State Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Mabel C. North, wife of a Verona bank official, will be Republicans.

While Mrs. Julia Blewitt, wife of a Newark business man, and Miss Emily O'Connor, clerk in the 2d District Court, are listed on the Democratic ticket.

In Hudson County four women are on the Republican Assembly slate and one on the Democratic ticket. The one on the Republican slate is Mrs. Cornelius Eltinger, Miss A. Armstrong, Mrs. Lillian Summers and Mrs. M. E. Chase. Mrs. Katherine W. Brown, the Democratic nominee, is almost certain of re-election, as Hudson County is the strongest Democratic county in the State.

Mrs. B. R. Mann is almost certain of election, as the Republican nominee in Mercer County, which is normally debatable ground between the two major parties. In Morris County Mrs. Veronica C. Demarest, Democratic nominee, is felt to be waging a hopeless fight in view of the Republican majority that is usually polled. Mrs. E. H. Highman, Democrat, is in a like position in Passaic County, where the Republicans are accustomed to sweep their candidates into office in easy fashion.

There is one clergyman on the State ticket this year, the Rev. A. L. Moore, Republican candidate for Assembly in Hunterdon County, a Democratic stronghold. Another clergyman, the Rev. Warren P. Coon, is the Republican candidate for Congress in the 8th District. He is expected to win easily from Frank J. McNally, his Democratic opponent.

AL JR.'S FIRST VOTE; HE "FOLLOWED STAR LIKE THREE WISE MEN"

ALFRED E. SMITH JR.

Split His Ticket? Well, Not So That You Could Notice it! Alfred E. Smith Jr. cast his first vote to-day. When he came out he was accosted by an Evening World reporter, who has known him for a long time.

"Well, I suppose you split?" the reporter suggested.

"Say," cried the son of the probable new Governor, "I followed the star like the Three Wise Men of the East."

known, Mr. Hubbard will not take the air from Mincola.

Within three minutes after the result of the election is known in The Evening World office, Mr. Hubbard will take off from Curtis Field, Mincola, with his Smith-white flare or his Miller-red flare set, headed for Greater New York. As he gains altitude the news will be proclaimed to the people of Valley Stream, Lynbrook, Long Beach, Glen Cove, Port Washington, Hempstead, Garden City, the Rockaways, Jamaica, Richmond Hill, Forest Hills, Canarsie, Flatbush and Brooklyn.

Mr. Hubbard will pass into Manhattan above the Brooklyn Bridge and continue across the Hudson into New Jersey. Over Jersey City he will head north to flash the result to the North Jersey folk back beyond the Hackensack Meadows. He will then recross the Hudson and start north up Broadway.

As Mr. Hubbard is passing over lower Manhattan the glare of his news signal will be visible in Northern Staten Island, South Brooklyn, Bay Ridge and Bayonne, if the night is clear. The Granges, Montclair and the elevated Jersey suburbs north of Newark should see the signal plainly under favorable weather conditions.

Undoubtedly uptown New York will be noisy enough to drown the sound of the plane as it passes over, but the glare cannot be missed. Experiments have shown that the flare, which is fifteen feet long and specially powerful, furnishes light enabling one to majority that is usually polled. Mrs. E. H. Highman, Democrat, is in a like position in Passaic County, where the Republicans are accustomed to sweep their candidates into office in easy fashion.

PRELIMINARY VOTES EARLY IN RHAMTAN FIRE HOUSE

RAMTAN, N. J., Nov. 7.—United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, Republican candidate for re-election, voted at 11:15 A. M. in the fire house of the Ramtán Relief Hose Company in Anderson Street, Ramtán, in the Fourth Election District of Bridgewater Township. The Senator appeared in good spirits, in spite of the fact that he did not get home until 4 o'clock this morning, after ending his campaign at a meeting at Mount Holly last night.

BRITAIN PREPARES, ALSO FRANCE, FOR ACTION IN TURKEY

Lord Derby Called to London—Marshal Foch Draws Up Military Plans.

LONDON, Nov. 7 (United Press).—

Lord Derby, Minister of War in the Bonar Law Cabinet, was summoned hurriedly to London to-day in connection with the Near East crisis. The interruption of his speaking tour was considered a sign that the Cabinet views as extremely grave the news from Constantinople.

An emergency meeting of the British Cabinet was held and a message from Gen. Harrington, at Constantinople, was considered.

PARIS, Nov. 7 (United Press).—Marshal Foch, Allied wartime Commander in Chief, was summoned by Premier Poincaré to-day to consider military plans to be invoked should the Turks violate the Mudania agreement. A Cabinet meeting was also held to consider the inflammable situation.

Three additional classes of Turkish soldiers have been called to the colors.

PARIS, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—The Allied High Commissioners at Constantinople have asked their Governments for authorization to take all necessary measures to maintain order in Constantinople. It was announced here this afternoon.

read a newspaper on the ground when the plane is 2,000 feet up.

The Evening World aviator will continue up Manhattan flashing the message to all Manhattan and western Queens and the towns atop the Jersey Palisades until he reaches Yonkers, where he will head southeastward, bound for Mincola. On this leg of his illuminative voyage he will spread the news to all lower Westchester, including White Plains, Mount Vernon, New Rochelle and Yonkers, the towns between and to eastern Queens.

When Mr. Hubbard lands at Mincola he will have carried his news-bearing comet over a course seventy-five miles long and thirty miles wide sheltering a population of 7,000,000 people. And the whole trip will have consumed less than an hour.
